

KILL EVERY ONE

National Crusade Against Dandruff Germs Now Being Waged in America

"The dandruff germ is the greatest American pest today," declares one of the world's greatest scientists and students of diseases of the hair.

In a recent interview he said: "If the germs of the dandruff are not soon annihilated, the United States will some day be known as the hairless nation. The Americans must wage a relentless war of extermination at once, and I am going to help them."

"My receipt for killing dandruff germs, well known as Parisian Sage, is now being manufactured in the United States."

There is only one way to cure dandruff, and that is to kill the dandruff germs.

There is only one preparation that will kill the germs, and that is Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is now manufactured in Buffalo, N. Y., by the Groux Mfg. Co., and agencies have been established in every town in America.

You take no risk in buying a bottle of Parisian Sage. A. L. Boehmer is the agent in this city and he will guarantee Parisian Sage to cure dandruff, stop falling hair, remove all diseases of the scalp, or money back.

Parisian Sage is the most marvelous hair dressing and tonic; it makes the hair beautiful, soft and luxuriant in one week. It causes hair to grow if the hair root be not altogether dead. The price is only 50 cents a large bottle at A. L. Boehmer's, or direct by express, charges prepaid, from Groux Mfg. Co., N. Y. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

THE WIGWAM.

Arrangements have been perfected for one of the best programs ever shown at the Wigwam to be presented this evening. The films to be shown tonight have been carefully selected and a high-class entertainment is promised. The difficulties which attended the showing of the films last evening have been overcome and everything will proceed smoothly. The work of the Ladies' Symphony orchestra is improving daily, if such a thing is possible, and the patrons of the Wigwam have come to know that they will hear the best selections, and the highest class music here of any house in Phoenix. The bill for tonight includes songs by Miss Ethel Hall and the following films, "The Japanese Spy," "The Laws of the West" and "The Golden Necklace."

A POPULAR ARTICLE

Cascarets, the original Candy Cathartic, has become a household word throughout the country and enjoys the enormous sale of over ten million boxes annually. Cascarets are distinguished from their imitations by the peculiar shape and color of the box, the octagonal tablet, and the letters "C. C. C." on each tablet. These features, as well as the name, is protected by trade marks, and this is done for the safety of the public as well as to protect the manufacturers from trade pirates.

Remember, the distinguishing marks of Cascarets here given, for they indicate genuineness, and you need never get fooled into taking a worthless substitute.

THE NEW AIRDOME

With a matinee and an evening entertainment at the New Airdome, Manager Brought promises exceptionally interesting programs today. The "Escape from Liberty Prison" is probably the strongest subject ever attempted by a moving picture concern and is bound to please and interest. Other films to be shown include "The Hidden Treasure," "The Romance of a Snake Charmer," and "The Adventure of a Cow Puncher." Harry Nace, who has been engaged in the management of Mr. Brought's moving picture house in Las Vegas, has returned to this city and will hereafter give his attention to the local amusement place.

RED CROSS SEALS AT PHOENIX DRUG STORES

OPPORTUNITY TO HELP IN WAR AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS.

Tremendous Good Done With Money

Raised From Sale of the Little Stamps.

Red Cross seals, or stamps, as they are commonly called, will be on sale tomorrow at every drug store in Phoenix, and may be obtained up to the day before Christmas.

No charitable movement ever begun in the world has met with the phenomenal success of the Red Cross seal. The idea originated in Denmark, and was taken up in this country several years ago. All the money raised from the sale of seals, at one cent apiece, goes to help stamp out the dread disease, tuberculosis.

Last year some few Red Cross seals were sold in Phoenix, but this year a wider effort is being made to dispose of them. The local distributor is Mrs. R. M. Gates, at the office of Roy S. Goodrich. She has placed the seals with all the drug stores of the city, and from now until Christmas not one package, not one message of Christmas cheer, should pass through the Phoenix postoffice without a Red Cross seal on the back.

The greater part of the money realized from the sale of the seals will be used right here in Phoenix, while a small portion will be used to swell a fund for national distribution.

It would be impossible to tell of all the good work that the money received from Red Cross stamps last year has done during the past year, but a few instances may be cited.

In Chicago, a little over $9,000 was realized, and this money for five months supported eight free tuberculosis dispensaries, together with eleven visiting nurses. 1,850 new patients being examined and 8,760 visits made to the clinics. In addition to this for the same five months the central office of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute was supported, and through this office hundreds of thousands of people were helped in that city and throughout the state of Illinois.

In Brooklyn, the $5,000 taken in from the stamp sale has gone to support a ferry boat day camp with an average daily attendance of 75. Many patients have been restored to health and usefulness as the result of this work.

In New York, the County Red Cross day camp on the roof of the Vanderbilt clinic, has given a chance for new health to hundreds of consumptives. Similar camps have fought the fight against tuberculosis in Kingston, N. Y.; Schenectady, N. Y.; Washington, D. C.; Kalamazoo, Mich.; Cleveland, Ohio, and in many other cities.

Special nurses have been provided from the Red Cross funds and in some cases tuberculosis dispensaries have been established. Literature has been printed and distributed, lectures given, exhibits conducted, and legislatures, municipal and county authorities stirred to activity, as the result of the Red Cross stamp sale of 1909. Every stamp has been a real bullet in the fight against tuberculosis.

Eat and Get Thin.

This is turning an old phrase face about but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Co., 213 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) 75 cents. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

Piles Quickly Cured at Home

Instant Relief, Permanent Cure—Trial Package Mailed Free to All in Plain Wrapper.

Piles is a fearful disease, but easy to cure, if you go at it right. An operation with the knife is dangerous, cruel, humiliating and unnecessary.

RAY CAMP THE SCENE OF A PRETTY WEDDING

The Marriage of L. R. Hardman to Miss Muriel Ohmert.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gaines, Ray, Ariz., a pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday evening, December 8, at 7:30 o'clock, when Miss Muriel Ohmert, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Gaines, was married to L. R. Hardman.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Engesser, and the groom by his brother, George Hardman. The marriage service of the Episcopal church was impressively said by the Rev. Mr. Fowkes. The bride was prettily attired in blue silk, made princess, with lace yoke. Her maid wore white organdy, made princess. Immediately following the ceremony the entire wedding party was led to the pretty little home that had been prepared by the groom in the New Dunham Heights addition, joining the park, where a reception was tendered the guests. Delicious refreshments of cake and beer were served.

Mrs. Hardman is an Arizona girl and one of Pinal county's most charming daughters, who has a host of friends. Recently she has been in the employment of the Consolidated Commercial company, where she was most proficient in her duties and resigned her position to take the marriage vow. Mr. Hardman is a young man of excellent habits. He came here from the east several years ago and has been continually in the employment of the Ray Consolidated company as engineer.

The many friends of the young people will be pleased to learn that they intend to make Ray their future home.

BUFFET BREAKFASTS

There is nothing more trying to the nerves of many women than to have the various members of the family late for breakfast. In many a family the morning meal hour is one big hubbub, with mother calling each tardy member with the impatient summons that "everything is getting cold." One woman has hit upon a plan of remedying this condition, which she says is a success and which she will continue until the novelty is worn off. She puts the salt, pepper, the cream for the coffee, the milk for the cereal and the sugar in the center of the dining room table and each breakfast is served on a tray when "father" arrives his cereal is brought and by the time that is eaten a tray is placed before him on which he finds his toast, eggs, slice or two of bacon and coffee, or whatever the breakfast menu includes. When Jack comes rushing in, followed a little later by Susan, both of whom must be at school before the last bell rings, they are served in the same manner. After eating each person takes his tray to the kitchen and places it on the table. Steps and worry are saved by this method. If there is a guest or an invalid present she will find herself ensconced in a big chair in the living room, before the fireplace, where her breakfast tray is taken and where she may eat in the glow and warmth of the grate fire.

PRESIDED AT HER 92ND BIRTH-DAY DINNER

Stamford, Conn.—"If the doctor who wanted to chloroform us old folks could see me now, I guess he'd have to admit there were exceptions to his rule."

Mrs. Catherine F. Caldwell said that as she sat at the head of a dining table around which were gathered her descendants, celebrating the ninety-second anniversary of her birth. At her right hand sat her eldest son, a youth of 69 years, and on her left was the eldest grandson, a mere lad of 52. Eight children, twenty grandchildren, seventeen great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren were there. Ninety-two candles flamed over two birthday cakes.

PARCEL DELIVERY IN ENGLAND.

The Government Handles It Vastly Better Than Express Companies Do Here.

"When an American, newly arrived in England, has occasion to send a package anywhere, he naturally inquires of the first Englishman he meets for the nearest express office," says William J. Keefe of New York, who is the representative of a number of American firms in London and who is at the Arlington.

"With a look of blank astonishment, the Englishman will probably tell him that he has never heard of such a thing for express companies under that name are unknown in England, except as American institutions. Then the American is apt to wax sarcastic and ask when John Bull is going to wake up and get 'em."

"But if he refrain from making the American eagle scream and pursue his inquiries further, he will learn that John Bull's postoffice is an express office that can give us points, and has its entertaining features, too. If his package does not exceed eleven pounds in weight, he will find that the postal authorities will deliver it for him anywhere in the kingdom safely and quickly, and charge him much less than he would have to pay an American express company for similar services.

"So well satisfied are English folks with their government express company that their only complaint against it is that it does not go in for the business on a bigger scale and transmit heavier and bulkier goods.

"It is something like eighteen years since that much-abused old fog, John Bull, awoke to the costliness and inadequacy of the service rendered by private express companies—which he calls goods delivery companies—and got the government to tackle the business of establishing a parcels post. Prior to that the delivery of all packages that could not be sent on letter postage was in the hands of private companies, which made a lot of money out of it. Of course, these vested interests and their allies, the railway companies, fought tooth and nail against the innovation—denounced it as unfair competition, socialism, and all that sort of thing. But, backed up by the long-suffering public, the postal authorities stuck to it. Each year saw the service cheapened, improved and extended until it has reached colossal proportions. Hopelessly beaten all along the line the private companies have almost entirely abandoned this special field to the government and confine their work to the handling of bulkier goods."—Washington Herald.

WILD TIMES ON THE VIA SACRA

A social snub administered by a Paris banker brought disaster to his affairs and to those of many others. Over-speculation in tulips ruined Amsterdam and London financiers. Rivalry in copper mines did the same for several bankers in New York City three years ago. Trifles upset finance even at the beginning of the Christian era, if we can believe what Professor Davis says in his "The Influence of Wealth in Imperial Rome."

In his opening paragraphs he explains how the loss of three richly laden ships in the Red sea, together with an unprofitable trade in ostrich feathers and ivory, brought ruin to Seuthes & Son of Alexandria, and by our dissolvent injection methods, and healing plasters, 47 years curing Cancer, 23 years in Los Angeles. Hundreds of references. Breast cancer in each case. thus started a crash the echoes of which were heard in Antioch and Ephesus, where Malchus & Co., dealers in purple, went down, unable to meet their obligations because their manager had embezzled and their employees had gone on strike.

From the Levant the wave of ruin spread to Rome, where the Via Sacra was assailed to hear that Maximus & Vibio, supposed to be one of the strongest houses on 'change, had gone to the wall, overloaded with the collateral of Malchus & Co. and Seuthes & Son. While the run on Maximus & Vibio was in progress the depositors of the Brothers Pettius began changing for their money and that firm closed its doors. Both concerns declared they were solvent, but that they needed time to realize on their assets.

To make matters worse Balbus & Ollius found themselves unable to meet the draft of Publius Splinter for 20,000,000 sesterces and closed their doors. Then all the other banks in Rome demanded notice before withdrawal of funds. This was the signal for commercial bankruptcy. The country banks were breaking every day, and the ships from Corinth brought news that Leucippus Sons had smashed. The arrival of the corn fleet from Alexandria eased things a bit and the imperial treasurer announced that he would deposit 100,000,000 sesterces in the Roman banks, after which the general confidence was gradually restored and business was gradually resumed upon its normal basis. We have not at hand our files of the Via Sacra News or the Roman Financial Journal and Investors' Guide with which to verify Professor Davis' statement of the panic, but there is something familiar in his account of this exciting time.—Chicago Tribune.
